

PEOPLE, BORDERS, WALLS: IMMIGRATION AND SOCIAL JUSTICE

May Term 2018 | May 21 – June 9

MW 9:00am – 5:30pm

Against the backdrop of current conversations regarding immigration, this course will explore the movement of people across borders. The course will examine perspectives which shape rhetoric regarding immigration, including asylum seekers, refugees, and immigrants. Participants will be provided with a framework for addressing philosophical and theological issues related to the rights of passage, including an interdisciplinary examination of the legal, economic, and political aspects of movement across borders. The course will include a service learning component in partnership with community organizations working with immigrant communities.
